Infrastructure

Equity Capital and Securities (London) understand the foundation for continued growth in developing countries in a working infrastructure.

In many instances urgently needed investments in infrastructure often exceed the scope of state finance.

A growing number of governments are also beginning to realise that power can be supplied or telephone networks set up by private companies as well.

So more infrastructure subsectors are being privatized or part privatized - with the attendant increase in the demand for finance.

Equity Capital and Securities (London) provides equity capital, mezzanine finance and long-term loans to fund small and medium-scale private infrastructure projects.

Finance can be provided for countries and projects where no finance is available through loans from local commercial banks.
